

Gender Inclusive Housing Application

Gender Inclusive Housing (GIH) offers students the option for a room environment that is individualized, not one that is limited by the traditional gender binary. This is a voluntary option that allows students to choose to live with an individual of any gender identity regardless of their biological sex. Residents who opt into GIH will identify a roommate before being assigned housing, or they will turn this form in and will be matched with another person who is compatible, and who has also chosen GIH. Each person must turn in an individual application. Please note that GIH is not intended for couples in a romantic relationship who wish to live together.

Why is a GIH room the best housing option for you?

What residence hall features, such as private restroom, single room, suite-style, are the best fit for your particular identity?

In a few sentences in the space below, tell us something about yourself you would want a prospective roommate to know:

If you have roommates in mind, please list them:

Roommate: _____

Roommate: _____

We will use this information to help guide us as we identify a roommate for you, and as we identify the best housing options for you. Our standard form of communication is email; expect an email from us with your housing assignment and/or follow up questions if we have them. If you have questions, concerns, or feedback, email us at reslife@collegeofidaho.edu. Please note that information on this form is not shared with other offices on campus.
