Visiting Assistant Professor of English in American and British Literature

The English Department at The College of Idaho invites applications for a full-time Visiting Assistant Professor in American and British literature in historicized transnational contexts. Preferred primary specializations include the transatlantic African slave trade, the African diaspora, and/or indigenous studies. This one-year appointment begins in August 2021. Teaching responsibilities include a range of writing and literature courses that may include transatlantic cultural formation and literary production. Candidates will have latitude in course focus and design.

The successful candidate will have PhD in hand at the position start date or be an advanced ABD. The candidate will have an active research agenda and demonstrate a passion for teaching in the liberal arts tradition. The teaching load is 3-1-3, which includes an intensive three-week term. The position includes professional development support for research and conference travel.

Candidates must be authorized to work in the United States as of the expected hire date and throughout the date of the contract without sponsorship from The College of Idaho.

A complete application will include a cover letter, CV, unofficial transcript(s), statement of teaching philosophy that articulates a commitment to teaching in the liberal arts tradition, sample syllabi, statement on diversity that articulates a commitment to representation and inclusion, and at least three letters of recommendation. Application materials should be sent via email to hr@collegeofidaho.edu with subject "VAP in English." Additional information may be requested of qualified candidates as we move through the applicant review process. Application review will begin April 5, 2021, and continue until the position has been filled.
